CAREER SUMMARY

Mary is a third generation viticulturist with expertise at all levels of the Australian wine industry, which has been honed over the past seventeen years in a range of vineyard management, technical, consultancy, research, training and extension roles since 1995.

After growing up on a fruit block in the Riverland of South Australia and completing tertiary studies in Conservation and Park Management, Natural Resource Management, Education, Arbitration and Viticulture, Mary worked as a Viticulture Lecturer (TAFESA and Okanagan University College, Canada), Project Leader for the Cooperative Research Centre for Viticulture (nationally), a winery hand in the Sonoma Valley (California), Vineyard Manager at Mountadam Vineyards (Eden Valley) and as a Senior Consultant/Viticulturist for Scholefield Robinson Horticultural Services (nationally).

This along with regular travel within Australia and overseas has provided Mary with a broad understanding of wine grape growing regions, rural communities and ways to build resilience into primary production businesses.

Along with Marys tertiary qualifications, she is a graduate of the Australian Institute of Company Directors Diploma course, a Fellow of the Australian Rural Leadership Foundation (ARLP Course 15), a past participant of the Future Leaders - Succession for the Australian Wine Sector Program and past Non-Executive Director of the Grape and Wine Research and Development Corporation.

Mary is the winner of the South Australian RIRDC Rural Womens Award 2012.

Mary is currently Managing Director of Retallack Viticulture, which offers a broad range of viticultural consulting services throughout Australia.

She is also a PhD student at the University of Adelaide studying the use of native insectaria species to boost beneficial arthropod populations throughout the year, providing greater biological pest control options in vineyards. For more information go to <http://www.adelaidehillswine.com.au/environment/phd-biodiversity-project/>

Her spare time is spent tending a small apple orchard in the Adelaide Hills.
